Men's Worsted Suits...

We sell all wool black suits stylishly made from Clay weave diagonal worsted suiting. The tailoring is equal to that in the best ordinary ready-made suits you've been wearing. These suits are bargains---but this is only half the story, for---

At $10.00 Now, what makes the difference? These suits are just as intrinsically cheap as are those at $7.00 and look just like them in the newspapers.

Let's see! The cloth in the $10.00 suits is a little better the lining is better, but that doesn't amount to much---either will wear well.

The principal difference is in the tailoring. These $10.00 suits are tailored as carefully as any merchant tailor would do the work. The edges are tailored, the collar and lapel are hand worked. There are over a thousand stitches in the collars and lapels---stitches that don't show when you put the coat on, but this painstaking skilled work puts the right kink in the collar and keeps it there.

If you want to make sure that you get the right kind of clothing be sure to get

This is the amendment which fills the minds of some of our friends with such gloomy forebodings and excites such aftere and determined spirit of opposition that there is a disposure among some of them to defeat the whole measure rather than accept this as a part of it. Now, sir, while this amendment is objectionable to me in some respects, I am constrained to say that it is not so on account of its repudiation of the free coinage provision of the original bill; and I will state as briefly as possible the reasons which compel me to take this view of the subject.

The gentleman from Ohio [Mr. Ewing) has taken a gloomy and despondent view of the situation in which these Senate amendments, if concurred in by the House, will leave the question of remonetization and financial relief. He anticipates no results of a total misconception of the measure in its present form, and he inimates very clearly that in his opinion it would be simply a fresh through of the wrong over the right, wor the money power over the peak. WHITE AND BLACK CRAVATS. In Former Times They Were Badges of the Wearer's Profession.

Years ago the white tie in this country was the characteristic wear of the reversed clergy, their monopoly, says the Boston Transcript. Thence it passed into general use and disputed popularity with the black. The black neckcloth was early in this century likewise a professional badge. Those who followed the profession of arms claimed the right to wear its a their monopoly and sometimes enforced that right. Cooper in "Wing-and-Wing" makes a very dramatic use of this custom. A French privater captain in disguise, has failen into the hands of the English and is brought before a courtmartial. So skillfully does he stick to his assumed character of a fisherman that his judges are puzzled until one of his necusers suddenly places around the prisoner's throat the strength of th

There is a royal pawnshop in Berin, there are state pawnshops, ducal pawnshops, country pawnshops, city or municipal pawnshops and private pawnshops and private pawnshops, and private pawnshops and private pawnshops may both exist in the same town. The rate of interest was fixed by a law passed in 1831 at not more than 24 per cent in lerse staws fixed by a law passed in 1831 at not more than under 30 marks, and not over 12 per cent. on larger sums.

Is Berlin the pawnshop is a royal institution, and is not allowed to make a profit. Its surplus goes to charitable purposes. At Hanai no interest is charged on loans up to three marks if the articles are redeemed within six days. At Hof, in Baden, people are allowed to raise money, giving as security the receipt of their wages two or three weeks ahead.

At Bromberk military ac-countrements are excluded from the articles which may be pawned. The pawrashops at Detmeld will not re-ceive articles in pawn from servants without consent of their masters. At Alteaberg and one or two other places no one is allowed to pawn ar-ticles of more than 200 marks' value without the consent of the town council. Although private pawnbrokers ex-ist alongside the municipal institu-tions, in many towns the latter re-fuse to do business with the former. Second-hand dealers and pawn-brokers are especially prohibited from resorting to the municipal pawnshops. A salutary regulation against dealing with pawn tickets is frequently enforced. The rate of in-terest fluctuates a great deal in Ger-many, and is highest for small sums loaned for short periods. The aver-age is about 12 per cent. and on loans issued against securities 4 or 5 per cent.

spoken by the Miowera in Australian waters while on the northward course.

The captain of the Dartford, in reporting the events of the voyage from London, announced that in about latitude 37 degrees 5 minutes south, and longitude 12 degrees 16 minutes west his vessel was hailed by a small boat. The yards of the Dartford were backed and the boat came alongiside. In it were several men and a quantity of potatoes, eggs, mile and penguin shims. The men of the state of the produce and the ships and the ships at the state of the ships at the provisions the captain that they depended on passing vessels for the provisions they named and for cirching, and that the inhabitants of the islands were in dire distress, because for six months not a boat had been also some canned goods. As the Dartford carried no such articles among her stores the ladies of Tristan d'Acunha must go corsetless and permit their basis to fact in the breeze and see must go corsetless and permit their hair to float in the breeze, not con stores the ladies of Tristan d'Acunha must go corsetless and permit their hair to float in the breeze, not confined even by ribbons.

The population of the island of Tristan d'Acunha, as reported to the captain of the Dartford by the men in the boat is 60, the women outnissibering the men in the proportion of three to one. Therefore there are 45 women and 15 men—that means 30 ummsted women. The group consists of three tiny voicanic isles, Tristan, the largest, being seven miles in diameter, in the center being a mountain 7,600 feet high, inaccessible, about two miles across, past light of the properties of the properties of the properties of the properties. The islands have been under the British flag since 1816, though, as the men in the boat told the master of the Dartford, no European government has paid any attention to them in the memory of any of the inhabitants. When Napoleon was at St. Helena, 1,300 miles distant, a British garrison was stationed on Tristan, but was withdrawn after the death of the exile. Corporal William Glass, his wife and family, and two private soldiers, were permitted to remain on the island when the garrison was withdrawn. The population had increased, to 60 people, some of the accessions being due to shipwred, and some to desertions from whaling vessels, the ribbons and the hairpins told him that the latest addition to the population of the island was the second mate of the wrecked vessel Allen Shaw, who was washed upon the rocky shore. He was seized by the women and married before he was dry.

The Superflucus Words.

The Superfluous Words

The late Charles Carleton Coffin, the author who first won fame as a war correspondent, was once asked the secret of his style, his graphic the secret of his style, his graphic descriptions baving given his letters from the front their great attractiveness. He answered that he had no method other than to write his story naturally, as if he were talking, and then to go over his copy and strike out every word not necessary to the sense. "Carleton's" plan embodied a principle of which many advertisers have since availed themselves. To be natural is to be sincer; to be concise is to be vigorous—and these are cardinal virtues in the economics of publicity.—Philadelphia Record.

Probably the oldest timber in the world is found in the ancient temples of Egypt, in connection with stonework which is known to be at least 4,000 years old. This, the only wood used in the construction of the temples, is in the form of ites, holding the end of one stem to another.

Silver Must be Restored.
All of the arguments against bimetallism narrow down to two.

2—Bimetallism would flood the seems who clear in money and run the gold out of the county faster than $1,000,000 a day, the rate at which it is now taking wings.

Any thinking man can see at a glance that both of these propositions cannot be true. One is bound to be a fallacy on its face. The miners can not have their property doubled in silver is equal to gold there cannot be a debased silver currency.

As a matter of fact, history and experience, the first proposition would be true and the second is of necessity false. No man who has studied the question believes that the United States, which for 57 years maintained than Europe and kept siver at a premium, could not again restore silver to its proper place in our currency, assisted by South America. Central America, Mexico, China and other silver standard countries covering two-thinds of the earth's surface. If years and Germany would quickly two would have to corner two metals instead of one. This is just what Mr. Carlisle said was the truth a few years ago and it is equally true to-day. Men may change, but principles are incree enduring. Let us then admit that free coinage by increasing the value of silver mining stocks would have been property of our own citizens, while making all-the people prosperious, than to continue a colamity worse—than "war, pestience and famine," by mortgaging our country to the pawnorkers of Loudon's Newcombian and the property of the property of

"I don't exactly understand," said the reporter.

"Let me tell you how it is," said the emciated man. "I came to Houston, a morth ago, and I hunted up a boarding house, as I cannot afford to live at a hote! I found a nice aristocratic-looking place that suited me, and went inside. The landlady came in the parlor, and she was a very stately lady with a Roman nose. I asked the price of board, and she said: "Epithy tollars per mouth," I fell against the door smh with a dull thud, and she said: "You seem surprised, sah. You will please remember that I am the widow of Governah Riddle, of Virginish. My family is very highly connected, give you board as a faval; I never consider money as an equivalent to advantage of my society. Will you have a room with a door in it?"

Madagascar's Queen.

Madagascar's Queen.

Gen. Duchesne says that the queen of Madagascar has accepted the French sucrainty as she might have done the mastery of a second husband and prime minister. She seems rather interested in the complete transfer of power from the exprime minister to the French, and showed herself deeply sensible to the many courteous aftentions of the victors. Gen. Duchesne thinks her open-hearted, open-minded, and in her way a charming woman. Another general says that she is extremely fond of dress, and longs to visit Paris. She can newer hear enough about the shopstand theaters, and the Elyseb talls.

It is Becoming More Practicable as Octovenient House Warmer.

Some interesting facts in regard to the steady extension of electric serbing are brought out by W. Hadaway, Jr., says the St. Louis Globelmacorat. More large contracts for electric car heaters have been closed during the winter than ever before, and there is, every evidence of the electric car heaters have been closed during the winter than ever before, and there is, every evidence of the electric car heater has become a staple commercial device. While most of the electric has become a staple commercial device that the electric car heater has become a staple commercial device. While most of the electric are beater in the stap of the water thousand cars are being equipped with them is significant testimony as to their value. without employing gas or other forms of flames or fire in the shop presented itself, and the underwriters were appeased by the adoption of electricity for the purpose. Other novel applications of electric beating mentioned by Mr. Hadaway are to maintaining the needed high temperature of 125 nine-pound sadienos in a line factory, and the beating of the water baths of 50 glue pots in a book bindery. Where the beath of the workmen is considered the use of electric heating in place of flame or fire greatly simplifies the problem of ventilation.
